Special Tiki Hut Edition

I am sitting in the Tiki Hut (maybe channeling Tiki Hut members past and present) and it hit me that a special edition newsletter from the Tiki Hut was appropriate and necessary. This is especially so since I spend nearly all my free time enjoying the company (and sometimes the solitude) of the Tiki Hut. While not as luxurious as a Diamond Crown Lounge, the Tiki Hut is Afghanistan's premier cigar-smoking establishment.

The interior, however, reflects the true nature of the Tiki Hut. The white screen is for "movie night" in the Tiki Hut: think of the MASH movie scenes, but with 21st century technology and no Klinger.

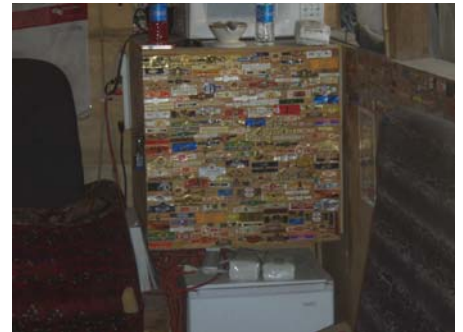

The decorations are delightfully tacky and almost anything goes. My contribution is the Miller Lite beer-can string lights.

The exterior is Spartan, except for the flowers—a project of CPT Beth Talent, a 218th soldier who headed home in the spring of 2008.

CPT Milligan, the current "Tiki 6" has recently started decorating the Tiki Hut by gluing cigar bands donated by members.

However, what really makes the Tiki Hut are the people who routinely gather in the evening.

Your dedicated reporter enjoys a donated stick on a recent cigar night.
